State of Missouri

Ladies and Gentlemen:

The State Board of Education herewith submits its One Hundred Thirty-Eighth Report of the Public Schools of the State of Missouri. This report, prepared in compliance with Section 161.092, Missouri Revised Statutes, covers the school year ending June 30, 1987.

We hope the information contained in this report will be of interest and assistance to you as you consider the needs and major problems of the public schools of the State of Missouri.

Respectfully,

Roseann Bentley

The State Board of Education was established in its present form by the Missouri Constitution of 1945. The State Board of Education consists of eight lay citizens appointed by the Governor with advice and consent of the Senate. Article IX, Section 2(a) also states that no more than four members of the Board may belong to the same political party. State Board members are appointed for eight-year terms which are arranged so that only one term expires each year. The Board elects its own officers.

The responsibilities of the State Board of Education extend from preschool through postsecondary and adult education programs. These responsibilities include:

- Establishment of policies for the leadership, service and regulation of public education. These policies are administered by the Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education.
- Operation of the State School for the Blind and the State School for the Deaf.
- Operation of State Schools for Severely Handicapped Children.
- Classification of schools and certification of teachers.
- Administration of vocational education, vocational rehabilitation and veterans' education programs.
- Administration and supervision of programs under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 and other federal programs.
- Apportionment of state moneys.
- Publication of laws relating to schools.
- Collection and publication of information which reflects continuously the condition and management of the state's public schools.

PART I.

Highlights of 1986-87

The future of education began to take shape in Missouri during 1986-87. Statewide school-reform efforts, begun by the General Assembly's passage of the Excellence in Education Act in 1985, gained momentum during the year and became more tangible as several major programs created by the new law were implemented for the first time.

While the changes which occurred this year may not be immediately apparent in every school or community, their impact is expected to spread quickly. More significant policy changes resulting from the new law—specifically, revisions in teacher certification and new requirements for prospective school administrators—will become effective in 1988. Together, all these initiatives are likely to bring about deep and lasting changes.

The new law "has altered the landscape of public education in Missouri," said Commissioner Arthur L. Mallory in an August 1986 speech to local school officials. The Excellence in Education Act, he emphasized, "has altered the expectations and raised the ante. . .We have embarked on a new course and should stick to it."

Here is a recap of the new programs that were implemented in Missouri's public schools during 1986-87 as a result of the Act.

Minimum Salaries

Nearly 3,000 full-time teachers, counselors and librarians in public schools received a pay hike as a result of the new state-funded minimum salary program. The Act calls for a four-year program of increasing minimum salaries across the state in order to improve entry-level pay and to attract well-qualified individuals into the profession.

The minimum salary was $15,000 for 1986-87. The Act calls for this figure to increase by $1,000 each year until a statewide minimum of $18,000 is reached in 1989-90. State funds for this program are provided as a supplement to cover the difference between the required state minimum and the school district's existing base salary.

A total of 2,926 professional staff members in 269 local districts qualified for the minimum salary supplement this year. State funding for the program totaled $3,971,008.

While supporting the goal of improving entry-level salaries, some educators objected to the minimum salary program because of the "compression" it caused in local salary schedules.

Career Ladder Program

Another group of Missouri educators also received a salary boost in 1986-87 as a result of their participation in the first phase of the career ladder program. A total of 2,454 teachers and other eligible school personnel received lump-sum payments of $1,500 at the end of the year by taking part in the voluntary program.

To be eligible for the career ladder, teachers, counselors and librarians must: (1) have worked for at least five years in Missouri public schools; (2) meet certain performance based evaluation criteria; and (3) carry out specific professional duties which are agreed upon by the teacher and the district.

Although some have criticized the career ladder concept as a "merit pay plan in disguise," the program has proved to be popular in most districts that started the program.

See page 11 ("Climbing the Career Ladder") for more information about career ladder funding and participation during 1986-87.

Mallory Leaves Commissioner's Post

Arthur L. Mallory, Missouri's Commissioner of Education since 1971, resigned his post on July 2, 1987. He had had the longest tenure of any chief state school officer in the nation. A former public school administrator and president of Southwest Missouri State University at Springfield, Mallory was one of the state's best-known public officials.

Mallory's departure followed the disclosure by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch on May 21 that he had been involved in an incident at a Jefferson City supermarket where he took wine from a shelf without paying for it. In an emotional press conference in his office that day, Mallory admitted he had taken wine from the store on several occasions in previous months. Mallory made restitution to the store and no charges were ever filed against him.

The following day (May 22), after a closed meeting with the State Board of Education, Mallory volunteered to take a 30-day paid leave of absence to seek medical help and counseling.

Robert E. Bartman, deputy commissioner of education, was named by the Board to serve as acting commissioner and head of the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education during Mallory's absence.

On July 2, following a closed meeting with the State Board of Education in Jefferson City, Mallory stepped down as commissioner, saying his resignation was "in the best interest of public education in Missouri."

In the press conference at which his resignation was announced, State Board of Education President Roseann Bentley praised Mallory for his "extraordinary" devotion to his job and to the improvement of education. She credited Mallory with having provided valuable educational leadership for the state during the 1970s and 1980s—a period of great change for schools. She also cited his efforts and achievements in working for major improvements in such areas as early childhood education, expansion of special education programs, increased funding for local schools and teachers' salaries, curriculum reform, strengthening the school classification system, and upgrading teacher certification standards.

Late in July, the Board announced it would conduct a nationwide search for Mallory's replacement. Robert Bartman, 43, was appointed Commissioner of Education by the Board on Nov. 21. On Nov. 19 and 20, the Board had interviewed four finalists for the job, after receiving about 50 applications. The Board set Bartman's salary at $70,000 per year.

Incentives Projects Begin

Using computers, recruiting parent volunteers, improving school attendance, reducing student stress, keeping potential dropouts in school and offering advanced math and science courses were just a few of the special projects begun this year by local schools under the Incentives for School Excellence Program.

With $4 million in state funds authorized by the Excellence in Education Act, the Department of Education approved 415 projects to receive first-year funding under the incentives program, which is designed to stimulate creative projects in local schools. More than 1,000 applications for incentives grants were submitted by 261 school districts.

The incentives program is very popular because it offers a source of funds directly for teachers, groups of teachers, school buildings and school districts to implement projects that meet specific local needs. Under State Board of Education rules, individual teachers may apply for up to $5,000. Groups of three or more teachers may request grants of up to $20,000. Building-level grants up to $30,000 are allowed; district-level projects can receive up to $50,000.

Funding for the 415 projects started in 1986-87 ranged from $183 for the smallest project by a single teacher to $50,000 for several districtwide projects. All grants were awarded on the basis of competitive judging conducted by the Department and a large panel of local school district personnel.

Under a formula included in the law, local school districts are required to contribute from 10 to 30 percent of the total cost of the matching-fund grants provided under the incentives program. The State Board of Education also is authorized to award "match-free" grants, which are funded totally by the state. During 1986-87, the Board set aside $200,000 for match-free grants, and 25 projects were approved in this category.

About one-fourth of all the incentives projects started during 1986-87 involved the use of computers or other technology. Special reading programs, math and science projects, and employment of teachers' aides were among the other most-popular topics in the incentives program.

Tuition Reimbursement

The state-funded tuition reimbursement program is designed to encourage educators (teachers and administrators) to continue their professional growth by taking courses in their area of specialty. Eligible school employees may be reimbursed for the cost of up to three credit hours in their current area of certification. Some general courses designed to improve teaching—such as "Effective Teaching," "School Discipline" or "Computers in

Summary of Legislation

Following is a recap of important education-related legislation approved by the 84th Missouri General Assembly during its first regular session in 1987.

School-Administered Spankings

This bill was prompted by the growing number of incidents across the state in which school officials have been "hotlined"—reported to the state's child abuse hotline after spanking students at school. The telephone hotline is operated by the Missouri Division of Family Services. Anyone may call the hotline to report cases of suspected child abuse or neglect.

The bill enacted by the General Assembly provides that in-school spanking, when administered by professional personnel in a reasonable manner and in accordance with school policies, is not "abuse" as defined by state law. The bill further provides that the Division of Family Services does not have authority to investigate school personnel for alleged child abuse, if a complaint is related to spanking or if the report is made solely to harass a school employee. The law requires the school superintendent or school board president and the county juvenile officer to jointly investigate a reported spanking or harassment. (See Section 160.261, RSMo.)

Open Meetings and Records

This bill revised the state's so-called "sunshine law." It changed existing laws related to the meetings and records of public governmental bodies, including boards of education. The bill clarified the reasons for which public bodies may hold closed meetings. It defined some new areas in which school districts may keep closed records (testing materials, software codes for data processing, sealed bids and related documents). The law retained a previous provision allowing decisions about personnel matters to be made in closed meetings, but it included a new provision requiring that such decisions be made public within 72 hours. (See Sections 610.010-610.028, RSMo.)

School Opening Date

This bill made permanent the requirement that school districts begin classes after Labor Day. The existing "Labor Day law," enacted in 1984, would have expired in 1989 without the passage of this measure. It requires public school districts to begin classes after Labor Day each year unless the local board of education determines that students in the community are needed for agricultural production purposes. (See Section 171.031, RSMo.)

School Levy Rollbacks

School districts receiving revenue from the state's one-cent education sales tax ("Proposition C") must reduce their local property taxes by the equivalent of half the amount of sales tax revenue they receive. This bill requires school districts to change the basis of their sales tax revenue collection from the calendar year to the fiscal year. The bill also allows districts to make one-time tax levy adjustments to recoup funds lost as a result of property tax revenues the district was entitled to receive the previous year. (See Section 164.013, RSMo.)

Special Education Services

This bill requires every public school district to provide special education services for all handicapped children residing in the district, even when those children attend private, parochial or home schools. (See Section 162.996, RSMo.)

the Classroom"—also are reimbursable for full-time, professional educators.

To qualify for the payments, participants must take their courses at a college or university in Missouri, and they must earn grades of A or B.

This year, 4,716 Missouri educators (including staff of state-operated schools) qualified for the first tuition reimbursement payments. State funding totaled $698,203. Participation in this program is expected to grow rapidly as educators become more familiar with it.

Board Approves Plan for Assessment Center

Beginning in 1988, Missouri will be the first state in the country to require all prospective public school administrators to pass a comprehensive "assessment center" before they are eligible for professional certification. The Excellence in Education Act requires would-be administrators (principals, superintendents, vocational education directors and special education directors) to satisfactorily complete the evaluation process, beginning Sept. 1, 1988.

In March 1987, the State Board of Education formally adopted a model assessment program developed by the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP) to serve as the basis for Missouri's administrator assessment program. The 10-year-old NASSP model covers job-related skills such as judgment, problem solving, decisiveness, stress tolerance, communications, personal motivation and leadership.

In addition to the NASSP model, the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education is developing assessment criteria covering curriculum, instruction, school law, finance, management and other topics.

President Reagan Visits Missouri

Columbia's Hickman High School was the focus of national attention on March 26, 1987, when President Ronald Reagan visited the school to address a special meeting on educational reform. The conference was sponsored by the U.S. Department of Education and the National Governors' Association. Governor John Ashcroft and U.S. Secretary of Education William J. Bennett were among the featured guests at the conference.

The visit sparked a whirlwind of activity in Columbia as the city prepared for the President's visit and motorcade from Columbia Regional Airport to the school. Before addressing a packed gymnasium at Hickman High School (above), President Reagan visited with students at Hickman High and at Fairview Elementary in Columbia.

The President's visit attracted unusually heavy national media coverage because it was his first major trip outside of Washington, D.C., since the controversy over the Iran-Contra investigation started in 1986.

During his speech, the President reviewed the progress of educational reform during his administration and reiterated his conservative agenda for education. "Basic skills, standards, discipline, work, family support, ethical principles—this is the new American consensus on the secret to quality education," he said.

Climbing the Career Ladder

Local school districts and state-operated schools are pioneering the development of an idea designed to provide more recognition—and money—for teachers.

The "career ladder"—an often-controversial idea that has been the centerpiece of school-reform efforts in several states during the 1980s—made its debut in Missouri during 1986-87. Sixty-three school districts took part in the voluntary program (see list). Staff of the State Schools for Severely Handicapped, Missouri School for the Blind and Missouri School for the Deaf also participated.

In all, 2,454 teachers, librarians and counselors in local districts and the state-operated schools completed Stage I career ladder plans during the year.

Missouri's career ladder program created, by the Excellence in Education Act of 1985, is formally known as the "Career Development and Teacher Excellence Plan." It is designed to recognize teaching excellence, promote teachers' satisfaction, provide greater rewards and incentives for experienced educators, and enhance student performance. When fully implemented, the three-step career ladder program will offer qualified educators an opportunity to earn salary supplements of up to $5,000 per year.

Only Stage I of the career ladder was implemented during 1986-87. In May of 1987, teachers, counselors and librarians who completed their individual career ladder responsibilities received lump-sum payments of $1,500. Three districts withdrew from the program at the end of the year.

During 1987-88, a total of 127 districts (including the state-operated schools) are expected to participate in the career ladder program. Stage II of the program will be implemented during the second year, and qualifying personnel will receive career ladder supplements of $3,000 each.

The career ladder program is jointly funded by the state and participating school districts, according to a "variable match" scale based on local school district wealth. Under this formula, school districts may receive from 35 to 90 percent of the total cost of their career ladder program from the state. Districts also receive a five percent bonus in state funding if they pass a local tax levy increase specifically to support the career ladder program.

State funds for the career ladder program totaled $2,751,525 during 1986-87. First-year participation in the career ladder was lower than expected, primarily because of districts' questions about long-term funding for the program, and because of teachers' lack of familiarity with the career ladder concept.

The NASSP assessment center system is recognized and accepted across the country, and many school districts use the program for evaluating and selecting administrators. Currently, though, no other state is using the assessment center concept as a prerequisite for professional certification.

When fully implemented, the assessment center program is expected to have a major impact on the training of school administrators in Missouri. The assessment takes two days to complete. It consists of tests, interviews, simulations of typical school problems, and observations by specially trained and experienced administrators. The new requirement is expected to affect about 400 administrator candidates annually.

Teacher Education Scholarships

In April of 1987, state education officials selected 210 outstanding students to receive $2,000 to help them prepare for careers as teachers in the public schools. Nearly 600 persons applied for the scholarships. Of the 210 who were selected, 14 declined—leaving 196 scholarships accepted.

The Missouri Teacher Education Scholarships were awarded for the first time in 1986. They are one-time, nonrenewable awards designed to encourage talented students to enter the teaching profession.

Applicants for the scholarship must rank in the upper 15 percent of their high school class or score in the upper 15 percent on a college-entry exam. High school seniors and graduates, junior college students, and college freshmen or sophomores are eligible to apply.

The program is funded jointly by the state and participating colleges and universities with professional education programs. The state provides $1,000 for each scholarship; higher education institutions match this amount for each recipient they enroll. This year, 24 public and private institutions took part in the scholarship program for prospective teachers.

A committee selected by the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education evaluated the scholarship applications and selected the recipients. The committee included legislators, Department officials, and educators from high schools, colleges and universities.

Department of Education officials have been pleased with the high level of interest in the Missouri Teacher Education Scholarship Program and with the caliber of applicants.

Premier of the "MMATs"

In April of 1987, about 200,000 public school students got their first taste of new state-mandated exams—the Missouri Mastery and Achievement Tests (MMATs). Developed as a result of the Excellence in Education Act, the tests were given in grades 3, 6, 8 and 10. The MMATs cover language arts, reading and English, mathematics, science, and social studies/civics.

The MMAT program marks a major expansion in required testing for public school students. Previously, the Basic Essential Skills Test (BEST), mandated by the State Board of Education in 1979, was the only test that all public schools must use. The MMATs are more comprehensive than the BEST, which is widely viewed as a "minimum competency" test.

As required by the Act, the MMATs are criterion-referenced tests based on state-defined "key skills." Tests for grades 3, 6, 8 and 10 were developed by the Department of Education through a contract with the University of Missouri. Additional tests are being developed for grades 2, 4, 5, 7 and 9 and will be available for use in 1988. According to the law, local districts are required to use the state-developed exams or develop alternative instruments that are comparable and approved by the Department of Education. In 1987, all but seven school districts in the state administered the state-developed MMATs.

The tests are designed to give districts diagnostic information about students' strengths and weaknesses, along with data indicating how students compare with the rest of the nation. Under State Board of Education rules, beginning in 1988, districts will be required to give the MMATs (or approved alternates) in two non-consecutive grades at both the elementary and secondary levels.

As required by law, the Department of Education also selected a random sample of students throughout the state to take the MMATs. Results from this administration are designed to reveal statewide trends in student achievement. Students in the state sample also took sections of the Iowa Test of Basic Skills (grades 3, 6 and 8) and the Tests of Achievement and Proficiency (TAP) in grade 10. The data from these commercial, norm-referenced instruments are used to help show how Missouri students compare with others across the nation.

Bentley Elected to National Post

Roseann Bentley, Springfield, a member of the State Board of Education since 1983, served as president of the Board during 1986-87. Before her appointment to the Board in 1983, she served nine years on the Springfield Board of Education, including two terms as president. A former elementary teacher, Mrs. Bentley is active in civic affairs, having served as president of the Ozark Public Telecommunications Board.

In October 1986, Mrs. Bentley also was elected vice president of the National Association of State Boards of Education (NASBE), a nonprofit organization representing state boards of education at the national level. She previously served as a central area director of NASBE, as a member of the bylaws committee for two years, and as a member of the group's governmental affairs committee.

Beyond Effective Schools

"It is belief systems, not structures, which ultimately drive all that we do in schools," says Dr. James H. Block (below), a professor at the University of California-Santa Barbara. He was a featured speaker at "Beyond Effective Schools," a special conference sponsored by the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education.

Held Oct. 13-15, 1986, at Columbia, the meeting attracted a capacity crowd of more than 500 teachers, curriculum specialists and school officials. The conference was an important part of the Department's continuing efforts to encourage local school districts to adopt mastery learning and other school-improvement strategies.

The conference was designed to show how local schools can use mastery learning and curriculum alignment techniques to assure that virtually all students are successful. Block is the nation's leading researcher in the field of mastery learning, and he serves as a consultant to many states and foreign countries. The conference also featured other nationally known authorities on curriculum reform and school improvement strategies.

Top Teachers

Kathy M. John (third from left), an English teacher at Blue Springs Junior High School, was named Missouri Teacher of the Year for 1986-87. Mrs. John and the five state finalists shown in this photo were honored Dec. 4, 1986, in a luncheon hosted by the State Board of Education in Jefferson City.

The five runners-up for Missouri Teacher of the Year honors were (from left): Theresa M. Reger, a social studies teacher at McCluer North High School in the Ferguson-Florissant School District; Dr. Aurelia Hartenberger, music department chairman and band director at Oakville High School, Mehlville School District; Christopher Brown, a biology teacher at McCluer North High School; Patricia Ann Turpin, an English teacher at Central Junior High School, Fort Zumwalt School District; and Roy L. Keeland, an American history teacher at William Chrisman High School, Independence School District.

The first results from the random sample administration of the MMATs were announced by the Department of Education in July 1987. The data showed that Missouri students scored above the national average in most academic areas covered by the tests, but that their performance was much weaker in such areas as writing, science and problem solving.

"By design, these tests are more difficult than traditional achievement tests. The MMATs stress reasoning and problem solving—areas which we know have not generally been taught or learned well," said Otis Baker, assistant commissioner for the Department of Education, in announcing the test results.

"The MMATs show us where schools need to improve instruction and curriculum so students will master at least the core skills and knowledge. We hope these key skills—rather than textbooks and conventional practice—will begin 'driving' a larger portion of the curriculum in local schools," Baker added.

A sample of the 1987 statewide MMAT results is included in Part II of this report (Table 42B).

Other Trends and Highlights

Public school enrollment increased slightly in 1986-87, and a record proportion of public high school graduates entered college during the year. The actual September enrollment count was 800,606—a gain of 5,500 (less than one percent) over the year before. The slight enrollment gain in 1986 had ended a 13-year decline in public school enrollment.

Public schools also reported that 48 percent of the graduating class of 1986 enrolled in college this year—the highest level ever in Missouri. The year before, 46.2 percent of the state's public high school graduates went to college.

Missouri's college-bound students also posted gains on the SAT and ACT college-entry exams. Missouri's composite score on the Scholastic Aptitude Test rose two points to 995. The national average for the SAT was 906, unchanged from the prior year.

The statewide average score for Missouri students on the American College Test (ACT) also increased in 1986, rising to 19.2 from 18.8 the year before. Most Missouri students take the ACT as their college-entry exam.

Meetings Focus on "Effective Schools"

During September and October 1986, the Department of Education conducted a series of Regional Educational Conferences focusing on the latest research about factors that contribute to quality education and how those qualities can be promoted at the local level. The theme of the meetings was "Successful Schools: Who is Responsible?" About 5,000 educators, citizens and community leaders attended the 10 conferences held throughout the state.

The conferences reflected the Department's continuing emphasis on the use of so-called "effective schools" research as an essential basis for school-improvement efforts statewide.

New Programs Target Drug and Alcohol Abuse

In 1986, a national Gallup Poll showed that Americans were more concerned about drug abuse than any other problem in schools. For many years, the same annual poll had shown that discipline was viewed as the biggest problem in American education. This poll and other events during 1986-87 focused renewed attention on the problems of drug and alcohol abuse among young people nationwide.

In November 1986, Gov. John Ashcroft convened a Governor's Conference on Health Education for Children in Jefferson City. The meeting was held Nov. 17-18; it attracted nearly 500 educators, school nurses, doctors, mental health workers, government and law enforcement officials and others. While focusing on a wide range of issues and problems related to the health and welfare of children and youth, the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse were a central focus on the conference.

A report issued after the conference included a wide range of recommendations from participants about ways to improve health among Missouri youth. Major recommendations from the conference called for:

- Establishing comprehensive health education programs for all students, kindergarten through college.
- Forming a Governor's task force to promote coordination of health and health education services.
- Implementing programs to strengthen positive life styles and attitudes among youth.
- Implementing community-based programs to promote healthy family life.
- Improving access to basic health care for children and young people.

New programs aimed at improving drug/alcohol education and prevention programs also were launched during 1986-87. During March of 1987, for example, Gov. Ashcroft announced a statewide "Mo Says No" to alcohol and

"PAT" Program Expands; National Center Formed

The "Parents as Teachers" program, Missouri's innovative service for preschoolers and parents that began in 1985-86, grew rapidly during 1986-87 and continued to attract national attention as a model for early childhood/parent education.

Although 1986-87 was only the second year of statewide implementation for Parents as Teachers (PAT), it is already being studied and adopted for use by other states.

Created by the General Assembly in 1984, the PAT program provides screening for young children (birth to age 3) and educational assistance for parents of children under 3. Screening helps detect handicaps or delays that can interfere with children's growth and development. Services for parents, including personalized home visits, are designed to help parents understand their children's development and become better "teachers" during the crucial preschool years.

State funding for PAT totaled a little more than $4 million during 1986-87. School districts received $15 for each child screened. They also received $150 for each family participating in the voluntary parent education program; $75 is provided for each family receiving partial services.

Participation in PAT nearly doubled during 1986-87, with more than 26,000 families across the state taking part in the program and with nearly 28,000 children being screened. The program is to be phased in gradually over several years until PAT services are available for all families who wish to take part.

In response to the strong national interest in Parents as Teachers, state education officials also began a special project to help promote PAT, provide training for educators and other interested professionals, and to begin "exporting" the program to other states and school systems.

In March 1987, the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education announced formation of "Parents as Teachers: The National Center." The center is located at the University of Missouri-St. Louis. Mildred Winter, former director of early childhood education for the Department, was named director of the center.

Commissioner of Education Arthur L. Mallory appointed a national advisory board to assist state officials in planning the center's activities and priorities. The 28-member advisory board includes some of America's leading child development specialists, representatives of private foundations and national education groups, as well as Governor John Ashcroft, state legislators, and Missouri education leaders.

The center's advisory board met for the first time at St. Louis on March 10, 1987.

drug abuse campaign. The campaign, supported primarily by new federal funding, includes new educational programs as well as law enforcement, prevention and treatment initiatives.

This campaign includes a federal program to provide about $2 million in special grants to public schools for programs related to drug and alcohol abuse. The State Board of Education adopted regulations for the new program in 1987, to govern projects beginning in the 1987-88 school year.

School Finance Study Group Begins Work

A special committee appointed by the State Board of Education began a study of school finance problems and issues in February 1987. The group met for the first time on Feb. 26-27, in Jefferson City, to begin a year-long evaluation of the Foundation Program, the state's major source of financial aid to local school districts.

The 50-member School Finance Review Committee included public school officials, legislators, representatives of statewide education associations and private-sector leaders. The Denver-based consulting firm of Augenblick, Van de Water and Associates was employed by the Department of Education to assist with the study.

The purpose of the committee was to evaluate technical aspects of the Foundation Program which, during 1986-87, was the means of allocating more than $900 million in state aid to local school districts. The committee also examined equity issues related to the funding formula.

Based on its findings, the committee will make recommendations to the State Board of Education for possible changes and improvements in the Foundation Program.

Third Scholars Academy Held at UMC

The third Missouri Scholars Academy, a three-week residential program for gifted high school students, was held June 14 to July 4, 1987, at the University of Missouri-Columbia. Three hundred sixteen juniors from public and private high schools across the state were selected to take part in the intensive learning experience.

Cynthia B. Thompson, a St. Louis businesswoman and former home economics teacher, was sworn in as a member of the State Board of Education on Dec. 4, 1986. She filled a position on the Board, formerly held by Donald West of St. Louis, which had been vacant for nearly a year. Mrs. Thompson was appointed to the Board by Gov. Ashcroft in October 1986.

The state-funded Scholars Academy was held for the first time in 1985. It is conducted by the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education in cooperation with the University. At the Academy, students select a "major" course for intensive study—three hours a day, six days per week. They also choose a "minor" course to attend each afternoon.

Special courses are offered in four academic areas: humanities, mathematics, science and social studies. This year, humanities was the scholars' most popular field of study, with mathematics a close second. The Academy's faculty included 25 outstanding teachers and administrators chosen from public and private schools and colleges across the state.

Stepping Up the Fight Against Illiteracy

On March 30-31, 1987, the Department of Education sponsored the Missouri Literacy Conference, the first statewide forum of its kind in the state to focus on the needs and problems of illiterate and functionally illiterate adults. Several hundred educators, government officials, volunteers and community leaders took part in the program.

The conference featured exemplary programs in the state that are working to improve literacy, plus national authorities in the field. Gov. Ashcroft, then serving as chairman of the National Governors' Association Task Force on Adult Literacy, also was a keynote speaker at the conference.

National publicity during the year focused public attention on the problems of adult literacy, and this issue became a top-priority concern in many parts of the country. As a result of the national attention focused on adult literacy, enrollment in adult education courses and other special programs increased sharply. In Missouri, the Department of Education sought an emergency appropriation of $280,000 during 1987 to help meet the fast-rising demand for adult basic education (ABE)—the classes which many adults take as preparation for the high school equivalency exam.

Almost 30,000 adults enrolled in ABE classes in Missouri during 1986-87.

Six Schools Win National Recognition

Six public schools in Missouri were chosen as national winners in the 1987 Secondary School Recognition Program, conducted by the U.S. Department of Education. The winning schools, announced in May 1987, were among 271 schools across the country chosen for the prestigious honor.

The Missouri schools chosen for the recognition were: Blue Springs Junior High School, Blue Springs School District; Palmer Junior High School, Independence School District; Parkway Central High School, Parkway South High School and Parkway East Junior High School, all in the Parkway School District (St. Louis County); and Rock Bridge High School, Columbia School District.

The Secondary School Recognition Program was started in 1983 by the U.S. Department of Education. The program now recognizes outstanding elementary and secondary schools in alternating years. □

SUMMARY OF COURSES OFFERED IN SUBJECT MATTER FIELDS

Number of Course Titles: There is a listing of course titles for each major area published each year (see Table 36). This number is the aggregate of that listing by area.

Duplicated Count of Students: If a student is enrolled in more than one course in a major area, the student will be counted for each course.

Percent of 9-12 Students Enrolled: This is a ratio of students enrolled in the major areas divided by fall state enrollment for 9-12 grades. The comparison of years shows activities of areas.

C. MISSOURI SCHOOL TRUST FUNDS

Section 162.790 (5) RSMo., authorizes the State Board of Education to accept grants, gifts, donations, or bequests for the use of the Missouri Schools for the Blind, for the Deaf, and for the Handicapped Children to deposit same in the Schools' Trust Fund in the State Treasury, or to invest such funds in stocks, bonds, deeds of trust, or any other investment securities in the amounts and in the proportions that the State Board of Education prudently selects.

The act further provides that "moneys in the School for the Blind Trust Fund or in the School for the Deaf Trust Fund or the School for the Handicapped Children Trust Fund shall not be appropriated for the support of the schools in lieu of general state revenues but shall be appropriated only for the purpose of carrying out the object for which the grant, gift, donation, devise or bequest was made," as recommended by the State Board of Education.

Passing Criteria: At least 1 of 3 items correct on each of the 13 objectives and at least 75 percent of the subtest items correct.
Testing Dates: March 1-15, 1987
Number of eighth graders included in this analysis—43,530
Total number of eighth grade students—58,861

B. Missouri Mastery and Achievement Tests

In April 1987, the first Missouri Mastery and Achievement Tests (MMAT) were administered to a valid representative random sample of approximately 5,000 students at each of four grade levels (3, 6, 8 and 10). The sample was designed to have the same characteristics as the students in the state as a whole, making it possible to generalize from the results with confidence.

The Missouri Mastery and Achievement Tests battery contains four subtests: English/reading/language arts, mathematics, science, and social studies/civics. In order to determine mastery/nonmastery at the key skill level, four multiple-choice questions are used to measure each key skill. The number of key skills per subtest varies from 17 to 29, resulting in 68 to 116 questions per subject and about 400 questions for the four subtests per grade level.

With scale score averages of all 300 and with only one year's results and no trend data available, the report of 1987 MMAT results was restricted to mastery performance at the key skill level—a very lengthy report. In brief summary, students in grade 3 mastered a higher percentage of key skills than students at the other grade levels in all subjects. Student mastery generally declines in all subjects at each higher grade level. This tendency is most pronounced in math and in science. An example of a portion of the state report—tenth grade math—is provided.

C. Results of Writing Assessment

Results of the 1987 writing assessment for Missouri are given below. Score one is low; score six is high. P represents the total number of papers scored. N represents the total number of readings. Each paper received two readings with those on which scorers deviated by more than one score point receiving a third reading.
